

There are several types of corn grown around the world but only two major types in Georgia, field corn and sweet corn. Field corn is used to many food products including corn meal, corn chips and livestock feeds. It is also used for non-food products including ethanol and polymers that are used to create plastics and fabric. Sweet corn is what you purchase fresh, frozen or canned for eating.