

Georgia has the second largest amount of salt marshes in the United States, half a million acres! Did you know that what the shrimp eat while in the marsh will determine what a shrimp will end up tasting like? Georgia's commercial and recreational food shrimp harvest season is usually from June to December.