

Okra is a warm-weather vegetable that grows well in Georgia during the summer. It has green pods that can be sliced and cooked in many ways—like fried, boiled, or added to gumbo! Okra plants have pretty flowers and can grow really tall. Georgia farmers grow okra on farms and in backyard gardens all across the state. It's crunchy, healthy, and fun to grow!