

In Georgia, wheat is usually planted in the fall, grows through the winter, and is harvested by tractors in early summer. When it's ready, farmers collect the seeds—called kernels. These kernels are ground into flour to make things like bread, pasta, and cereal. What is your favorite food made with wheat?