

Georgia is one of the top squash-producing states in the country—and that includes zucchini! Zucchini is a type of summer squash that grows best in warm weather. In Georgia, it's harvested from May through September. Zucchini has soft, edible skin and grows fast—sometimes a few inches overnight! You can eat it raw, cooked, grilled, or even baked into bread.